

Performance of the Institution in one area distinctive to its priority and thrusts

Vanguard Business School (VBS) has distinguished itself not only for its academic excellence but also for its commitment to fostering a culture of dissent and discussion among its students. In today's world, where differing opinions are often silenced or ignored, VBS stands out by actively promoting freedom of speech, cultural diversity, and socio-economic responsibilities through various initiatives, notably its debate competitions. These competitions serve as platforms for students to express their views, engage in constructive dialogue, and develop critical thinking skills.

At the heart of VBS's ethos lies the belief that dissent and discussion are essential components of a vibrant academic community. Rather than shying away from controversy or discomfort, VBS encourages its students to confront difficult topics head-on, engaging in rigorous debate and dialogue to better understand complex issues from multiple perspectives. First and foremost, VBS emphasizes the importance of thorough research and preparation. Before participating in a debate, students are expected to conduct extensive research on the topic at hand, familiarizing themselves with relevant facts, statistics, and arguments. This commitment to preparation ensures that debates are grounded in evidence and reasoned analysis rather than mere speculation or personal opinion. Furthermore, VBS places a strong emphasis on respectful discourse and constructive engagement. Debaters are expected to express their views in a clear and articulate manner while also listening attentively to opposing arguments. Adherence to etiquette and decorum is paramount, with participants refraining from personal attacks, inflammatory language, or disrespectful behavior. VBS instills in its students the importance of maintaining a civil and courteous tone, even when expressing disagreement or challenging opposing viewpoints.

One such critical event where VBS organizes debate competitions is International Women's Day. This day serves as a reminder of the ongoing struggle for gender equality and women's rights. By hosting debate competitions centered around themes such as gender equality, women's empowerment, and the role of women in business and society, VBS encourages students to critically examine prevailing norms and advocate for positive change. These competitions not only provide a platform for female voices but also foster greater awareness and understanding among the entire student body.

Similarly, on Voters Day, VBS recognizes the importance of democratic participation and civic engagement. Through debate competitions focused on topics such as electoral reform, political accountability, and the role of youth in shaping the future of democracy, VBS empowers students to become informed and active citizens. By encouraging lively discussions and debates, VBS cultivates a sense of responsibility and agency among its students, inspiring them to contribute positively to the democratic process.

During Vidhan Sabha elections, VBS seizes the opportunity to engage students in discussions about the electoral process, political ideologies, and governance issues. Debate competitions organized around these events enable students to explore diverse perspectives, critically evaluate political platforms, and develop their own informed opinions. By encouraging students to participate in these debates, VBS not only promotes political awareness but also instills a sense of civic duty and responsibility.

The Ram Mandir judgment, a landmark decision with profound cultural and socio-political implications, provides another opportunity for VBS to facilitate meaningful discussions and debates. By organizing competitions that explore the legal, historical, and ethical dimensions of the verdict, VBS encourages students to grapple with complex issues surrounding religion, secularism, and identity. These debates serve as catalysts for introspection and dialogue, fostering greater understanding and tolerance within the student community.

In addition to domestic events, VBS also actively engages students in discussions about global issues and initiatives. For example, the Agniveer scheme, aimed at promoting environmental sustainability and social responsibility, inspires debate competitions focused on topics such as climate change, corporate ethics, and sustainable development. By encouraging students to explore the intersection of business, ethics, and the environment, VBS cultivates future leaders who are not only competent professionals but also socially conscious global citizens.

Overall, Vanguard Business School's commitment to conducting proper and meaningful debates according to strict guidelines ensures that its debate competitions are not merely intellectual exercises but valuable learning experiences. By promoting research, respect, diversity, and effective communication, VBS equips its students with the skills and confidence they need to engage thoughtfully and responsibly in discussions about complex issues. In doing so, VBS not only equips its students with the skills, but also instills in them a sense of responsibility and empathy that extends far beyond the classroom. VBS fosters a culture of critical thinking, dialogue, and intellectual inquiry that prepares its students to excel both academically and professionally in today's interconnected world.
